

XIII THE GRASBY PROJECT 2000

As part of the celebrations to welcome in the new Millennium a project was organised by Ifor Barton to produce a CD Rom with a wide selection of photographs, documents, interviews and general interest articles to illustrate some of the village's history, its landscape and wildlife as well as contemporary changes and developments. Below and taken from this CD are a series of photographs which demonstrate quite vividly some of the most notable changes that took place during the C20th.

The order of photographs follows a route around the village beginning with the Mill in the north and working more or less southwards towards Station Road. The map below provides the names of roads and streets at various times in the past.

The Old Mill

Even the old base of the mill has now been completely demolished

The Post Office is a Grade II listed building on the corner of Main Street and Vicarage Lane

Village Green

Possibly the Village Green – pictures taken at beginning of Clixby Lane looking west

Clixby Lane

One of these children is Violet Grey nee Bell

Looking east, top of Front Street bottom right

Taken on Good Friday March 23rd 1975

Mrs Lacey and son Fred in front of their shop at Reading Room Cottage. Today it is a modernised cottage opposite to the Post Office at the beginning of Vicarage Lane

The disused crushing plant in the old Lime Works on Vicarage Lane opposite and slightly west of Reading Room Cottage (likely date 1970s)

The Old Quarry Workings

The cleared area has now been entirely filled with new housing. Also demolished was the Wesleyan Chapel shown bottom right in top photograph. View from church tower.

School

The exterior to the main part of the building has changed very little. The school is opposite the church on Vicarage Lane

Church Tower

The spire was demolished and the tower capped in 1956

The View from All Saints Tower

Manor Farm is centre right in the top picture. Since its demolition (bottom) a new dwelling has been built to take its place at Church Close/Vicarage Lane junction. View is west from tower.

Manor Farm

This field is on the north side of Vicarage Lane (now built on) looking SE. Manor Farm is hidden (centre right) from view.

Looking down Front Street

The workshop (centre left) has now been demolished. The view is south from part way down Front Street looking towards Canty Nook and Bentley Lane.

Front Street

Again, looking south. The cottages on the left are some of the oldest buildings in the village.

Looking up Front Street

The view is north from the east end of Canty Nook.

Frank Haw and Jim Frankish

Wheelwright's workshop on east side of Front Street, now demolished.

Number 9, Front Street

It's a shame that the original house could not have been renovated

Kirkby's Shop

The shop is now a private house. The location is at the bottom of Front Street. The road bottom left, lower photograph, is the top of Bentley Lane.

Kirkby & Sons

An earlier photograph of the shop – note the absence of petrol pumps.

Blacksmith Row

Photographs taken looking south from near top of Church Hill. The Blacksmith's cottage (centre left) remains but the two cottages below this have been demolished.

The Blacksmith

Eric Hasnip and Ricky

Workshop demolished to make way for new housing. His cottage remains as private dwelling.

Blue Bell Inn

Looking north up Church Hill. Old Blue Bell hidden by new bungalow (bottom photograph).

Church Hill

Again, looking north. Temperance Cottage centre left, top photograph (private house today).

The Old Vicarage

The first dwelling on Station Road and oldest house in village, foundations dating back to 1606.

Victorian Barns, Glebe House, Station Road. New house built to left of barn (bottom), but barn retained and renovated by owners of Glebe House (a private dwelling).

Demolition of Vicarage Farm barns begins. Photographs taken from within stack yard looking towards Station Road.

Berkley House

Station Road (the mock Tudor beams have since been removed)

Station Road Terrace

The terrace still exists, fully modernised.

Thomas Sellars Farm, now "Treetops".
